

MEDICAL EQUIPMENT COMPONENTS

Part Design

The following are general questions that would need to be answered while designing a precision medical product:

- Rubber material hardness?
- What environment and chemicals will the product be subject to?
- What life expectancy is needed on the product?
- If the product requires a core, what core material would be suitable for the application?
- What specifications would the parts have to meet?